

For the first part, we can say: "The team is utilizing Large Language Models (LLMs), advanced Artificial Intelligence systems trained on vast amounts of data, to generate human-like text." For the second part, we can say: "The team emphasizes the importance of consistency and continuous improvement in the text summarization task. They propose various techniques such as splitting, enhancing, and combining the text multiple times to achieve more effective results." Finally, for the third part, we can say: "To support their proposed techniques, the team creates a block diagram and presents their results."
